Sun Safety

Since January 1, 2017, the Northeast Regional Cancer Institute, in partnership with Wilkes-Barre General Hospital, presented information on sun safety and skin cancer information in a variety of community settings. These programs focused on skin cancer risk factors, ways to reduce risk, and the importance of talking with your health care provider about skin cancer screening. All programs also provided printed information about skin cancer and sun safety.

- 22 programs were presented to the community with 493 participants
- Sun safety and skin cancer resources were distributed at 13 health fairs with over 1,100 participants.
